

Joker

This movie poster is simple smoke and mystery with a slight glimpse of the character, while also standing for joker and his attitude and theme. It is a good poster that does not show too much and not too less to look boring. A nice and simple display without needing to need to concentrate on. I really like the simple yet attractive title font and size.

Suicide Squad

This poster has a nice fade in colors throw a spray paint method. The green and purple are both light colors attracting the audience's attention. Once you look at it the detail and cluster of images and characters on the center of the poster attracts the attention of the audience. While they use a light rainbow of colors to make the title stick out, but it seems a little much making it a little hidden.

Free Guy

This is my favorite poster because it has a lot of simple images that attract your attention but does not necessarily need that much concentration. It makes use of objects that everyone has seen such as cars, planes and even a blimp and makes a big part of the poster of them while not requiring you to get close enough to see them. The only problem I see with this is the title being too small and low not really picking up attention and being forgotten about.
