Comments:

Well done Harry, you have completed this project to a good standard. The work you have submitted meets all assessment criteria and is of a high standard. This is a very interesting take on the history of the electric guitar.

There are a number of different original project ideas listed at the beginning of this project with some detail and you developed these ideas to create your final topic.

You have shown a good understanding and knowledge of Les Paul and his inventions throughout this essay.

You have shown original interpretations of the development of the electric guitar. However, you could have backed up the points you made with further investigation of secondary sources.

The main area for improvement is the lack of sources and references throughout the essay. Although your interpretations were engaging and often accurate, you must use other opinions to substantiate your claims in academic writing.

Well done Harry, I know you do not enjoy academia and you have worked hard to create a strong piece of writing that could have been excellent with more detailed research and referencing.
