

HEATED ROLLERS:

I started by sectioning the front pieces of the hair from the ears. I used smaller rollers for the front of the face and curled toward the head.

Then for the rest of the hair, the back section I placed the slightly bigger rollers randomly to created more texture and volume. I wish I did some different ways too to give even more texture.

ONCE COOLED:

After they have gone cold I removed the rollers starting at the bottom and working my way up but twisting the hair as they unravel.

BRUSHING OUT:

To brush the curls out I used a wide tooth comb to make them more bouncy then I found the dolls head didn't hold the curls very well so I tired pinning the dips in the hair to try and help hold the curl slightly.
